

Structure: CJN (Challenge Justify Need)

Subject: I deleted my automation channel

Everyone gives the same advice.

"Start a faceless channel." "Spam reels on Instagram." "Just create content."

But honestly?

That is the absolute worst way to make cash right now.

It's a total trap.

I mean, think about it.

Hours fighting prompts.

Late nights editing until your eyes ache.

One day the AI sounds brilliant.

The next, it writes like a confused intern.

All that....

Only to get 40 views.

Why?

Because 50,000 other people uploaded the exact same AI slop today.

The competition is too high. The pay is too low.

You promise yourself freedom, but you end up working harder than you do at your day job.

So I stopped doing that.

I switched to something boring that actually pays.

I sell simple websites to local businesses.

I know what you're thinking. "Web design takes too long."

Not anymore.

With the new AI tools out right now, you can generate a full site in about 15 minutes.

And here is the thing people get wrong:

Local business owners don't need a $5,000 website.

They just want to show up on Google.

They will happily PayPal you $150 or $200 for a simple site.

It's barely any money to them.

But if you sell three of those a week? That's rent money.

Posting AI Reels is like running in a high-tech hamster wheel.

Sure, you're using "AI" to run faster, but the moment you stop pedalling, the lights go out. No content, no views, no money. You're just a glorified data-entry clerk for Mark Zuckerberg.

A local business site is a vending machine. You set it up on a busy corner (Google Search), you stock it once, and it sits there 24/7. People walk up, they see what they need, and the machine collects the change. You only show up to collect the cash and make sure it's still plugged in.

The concept is simple.

But you can still mess it up if you target the wrong businesses or say the wrong thing.

You need to know who is actually buying.

I recorded a video showing exactly how I did this yesterday.

Just me, a laptop and wifi.

Although I wasn't able to reach my target of 5000$ in 24 hrs, id take 4800$ over no money any day lol.

[Watch the breakdown here]

Catch you later,

[Your Name]